St. Anthony de Padua wasn't actually born in Padua, Italy—he was born in Lisbon, Portugal in 1195 and baptized as Fernando Martins de Bulhões. Raised in a wealthy family, he chose a different path than the one his family had envisioned for him: a life dedicated to God.

At age 15, he joined the Augustinian Order, where he spent years in study and prayer. But his life took a dramatic turn when he encountered the Franciscans—he was inspired by the martyrdom of five Franciscan friars in Morocco and became consumed with the desire to join the Franciscans and preach the Gospel to the Muslims. He left everything behind to follow a life of poverty and preaching, taking the name Anthony in honor of St. Anthony of the Desert. In 1220 he became a Franciscan and sailed for Morocco — but upon reaching his destination, he fell seriously ill and was bedridden for several months.

En route back to Portugal, Anthony's ship encountered a storm and was washed up on the shores of Sicily, where Franciscan friars nursed Anthony to good health. He then journeyed north to Assisi for a general gathering of some 3,000 Franciscans.

In 1221, Anthony embarked on his career as a Franciscan preacher, proclaiming the Gospel through France and Italy, where large crowds filled town squares and vast fields to hear his sermons. Anthony called people to a deeper faith because he himself was a man of faith. He never lost sight of the transcendent dimension of his own life which enabled others to see in him the transcendent dimension of their lives. He was truly a living Gospel to others — denouncing injustice and proclaiming the message of love for God and all his creatures.

St. Anthony died on June 13, 1231, at just 35 years old. Less than a year later, he was canonized as a saint—one of the fastest canonizations in history! Today, his tomb in Padua, Italy is a major pilgrimage site, drawing millions of visitors.
