Saint Pier Giorgio Frassati is the Patron Saint of youth, young adults, Catholic students and mountaineers. His famous motto, "Verso l'alto" ("To the heights"), symbolizes both physical mountain climbing and the pursuit of spiritual greatness.

Blessed Pier Giorgio Frassati

The Man of the Beatitudes

Young people today who are looking for a role model will find someone to identify with in this vibrant young outdoorsman who combined a deep love for Christ, a desire to serve the needy, and a mission to imbue society and politics with Christian ideals.

1901
Pier Giorgio Frassati was born in Turin, Italy on April 6, into a wealthy and influential family, who owned a newspaper called La Stampa.

1918
He decided to become a mining engineer, studying at the Royal Polytechnic University of Turin, so he could "serve Christ better among the miners," as he told a friend.

1921
He attends the Young Catholic Workers Congress in Rome and is arrested during a demonstration.

1922
He joins the Circle of the Young Catholic Workers. He becomes a Dominican Tertiary.

1924
He founds with his friends the association "The Sinister Ones" or "The Shady Characters."

1925
Contracted poliomyelitis, which doctors later speculated he caught from the sick whom he tended.

1981
His mortal remains are exhumed and found to be perfectly intact and incorrupt.

1990
On May 20, Pier Giorgio Frassati is beatified by Pope John Paul II in St. Peter's Square in Rome, in the presence of thousands of young people.

To live without faith, without a patrimony to defend, without a steady struggle for truth, that is not living, but existing."
